Your Kentucky Black History

In addition to this textbook, three other free publications are a part of the Kentucky Black History Project of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights:

1. A Gallery of Great Black Kentuckians, a series of illustrated 14 x 11 color posters designed to introduce students to black citizens outstanding in Kentucky history. By July 1971, posters had been released on the following persons:

Dr. Thomas Wendell, pioneer in mental health
Mrs. Emma C. Clement, first black American Mother of the Year
Charles W. Anderson, Kentucky's first black legislator
Isaac Murphy, winning jockey in 3 Kentucky Derbies
James Bond, civil rights leader in the 1920's
Colonel Charles D. Young, military hero in U.S. army
Whitney Young, Jr., National Urban League Director (1961-1971)

2. Kentucky Black Elected Officials Directory, an illustrated booklet including facts about the more than 40 black Kentuckians currently serving in elective State, county and city offices.
3. Teachers Manual to accompany Kentucky's Black Heritage, available fall, 1971

Students, teachers, and anyone interested in Kentucky black history are invited to send their suggestions, corrections, additions, for Kentucky's Black Heritage to the Kentucky Black History Committee. Obviously it has not been possible to obtain and to include information about every aspect of the life of black people in Kentucky in the first edition on this subject. Countless hours have been spent in its preparation, but there are many other facts which are not included.

To be most helpful, your suggestions should be specific.

1. Please refer to a page or chapter in this book
2. Please tell us what language should be included
3. Please tell us your sources for the information, including the name of any book, the page where it appeared and where the book might be located
4. Please include your name, address and phone number so we may contact you for future information
